Overview

THE JANES profiles seven women in Chicago who were part of a clandestine network formed in 1968. Using code names, blindfolds and safe houses, and calling themselves JANE, they built an underground service for women seeking safe, affordable, illegal abortions.

To supplement the film and support the audience in deepening their learning and understanding of this topic, we have highlighted organizations working to make a difference in providing equitable reproductive health care access for all below, including some of the partners who provided their insight and time to support other relevant impact campaigns and activations around this issue.

There are many organizations that work hard to improve reproductive health care for people around the country -- use this Resource Guide as a starting point to learn more about ways you can help, or resources you can tap into yourself.

Reproductive Health

Planned Parenthood

Planned Parenthood is a trusted health care provider, educator, and passionate advocate in the U.S. as well as a strong partner to health and rights organizations around the world. Each year, Planned Parenthood delivers vital sexual and reproductive health care, sex education, and information to millions of people.

National Institute for Reproductive Health

The NIRH builds power at the state and local level to change public policy, galvanize public support, and normalize women's decisions about abortion and contraception.

National Women's Health Network

The NWHN encourages women to consult sources they trust to get unbiased, evidence-based information about their needs and concerns. They believe that all women should take an active role in understanding their health, in order to make informed decisions regarding their bodies and health care.

National Family Planning & Reproductive Health Association

NFPRHA advances and elevates the importance of family planning in the nation's health care system and promotes and supports the work of family planning providers and administrators.

Guttmacher Institute

The Guttmacher Institute is a leading research and policy organization committed to advancing sexual and reproductive health and rights worldwide.

ACLU's Reproductive Freedom Project

The ACLU works to ensure that every person can make the best decision for themselves and their family about whether and when to have a child without undue political interference.

Advancing New Standards in Reproductive Health

ANSRH conducts innovative, rigorous, multidisciplinary research on complex issues related to people's sexual and reproductive lives. Their work is informed by an understanding of the role that structural inequities play in shaping health. They believe in the importance of research in advancing evidence-based policy, practice, and public discourse to improve reproductive wellbeing.

NARAL

This organization fights for reproductive freedom for every body. Each day, they organize and mobilize to protect that freedom by fighting for access to abortion care, birth control, paid parental leave, and protections from pregnancy discrimination.

All Above All

All Above All is a coalition comprised of over 130 national, state, and regional partner organizations in the U.S. committed to restoring federal funding for abortion.

Center for Reproductive Rights

The Center for Reproductive Rights is a global human rights organization of lawyers and advocates who ensure reproductive rights are protected in law as fundamental human rights for the dignity, equality, health, and well-being of every person.

Women's Reproductive Rights Assistance Project

WRRAP is the United States' largest national, independent, nonprofit abortion fund. They provide urgently-needed financial assistance nationwide to individuals seeking abortion services or emergency contraception.

Women's Rights

National Organization for Women

The National Organization for Women is dedicated to its multi-issue and multi-strategy approach to women's rights, and is the largest organization of feminist grassroots activists in the United States.

National Women's Law Center

The National Women's Law Center fights for gender justice—in the courts, in public policy, and in our society—working across the issues that are central to the lives of women and girls. They use the law in all its forms to change culture and drive solutions to the gender inequity that shapes our society, and to break down the barriers that harm all of us—especially women of color, LGBTQ people, and low-income women and families. For nearly 50 years, they have been on the leading edge of every major legal and policy victory for women.
